SSSS 2018-2019

INFORMATION

THE SCENE

Deep in the woods next to your house lives the mysterious Harold Zhang. All you know about him is that he is obsessed with everything kazoo-related. He has been seen baking kazoo-shaped cakes, carving his own kazoos out of the surrounding trees and serenading the local squirrel and bird population. He has a large collection, ranging from the common plastic kazoo to a rare historical bass kazoo. However, his most prized possession is his solid gold kazoo, encrusted in diamonds and other precious stones. One day, after returning home from kazoo choir rehearsal, he discovers that his most treasured kazoo is gone! He is counting on you to find out who stole it.

THE SUSPECTS

Stephen Way: Stephen, a chemistry student, is frequently found in the lab, surrounded by plastic beakers. Aside from chemistry, he enjoys baking. However, due to his hypertension, he must use a salt substitute. He is trying to increase his water intake and is often seen with a plastic water bottle. Stephen is also an avid fisherman, but he insists on using natural hair for the fishing line, rather than nylon string. He holds a grudge against Harold for outbidding him in the latest kazoo auction. “I just want my own luxury kazoo!” Stephen exclaimed.

Fingerprint:

Leonardo Kimberly: Leonardo works in construction, where works with gypsum drywall, as well as helping lay plastic pipes for sewer and water supply applications. His construction work often happens in the winter, so he has a large collection of woolen flannels to wear to work. In his spare time, Leonardo rehairs bows for local violinists and cellists. He wears glasses, but his lens material is susceptible to cracking and does not block ultraviolet light well. Leonardo recently visited Harold’s house to fix his plumbing system.

Nathaniel Sun: Nathaniel is an ice skater. He sews his own costumes so he can be sure that they are made of natural silk. While attempting several jumps, he sprained his ankle and was prescribed Epsom salts and ibuprofen to treat it. He is known to have a sweet tooth, adding table sugar to everything from yogurt to coffee. In his free time, he volunteers at a local farm, where he cares for elderly cows. Nathaniel also recently developed a cough and was prescribed an expectorant as part of his medication regimen. He was reportedly seeking Harold to record a kazoo-based soundtrack for his newest show.

Fingerprint:

Karen Wagner: Karen is a grocery bagger at a health store that sells various supplements and medication, like vitamins and flavor substitutes. She takes medicine for bipolar syndrome. Her glasses are highly impact resistant but not as scratch-resistant. She enjoys volunteering at her local park by rebuilding and cleaning bat houses. While cleaning up litter, she sprained her ankle and was prescribed heating and cooling packs for the pain. She uses numerous skincare products for acne and only wears Merino wool or stain-resistant artificial fabrics. Karen was dating Harold, but he broke up with her last week to concentrate on his kazoo collection. “I visited his house just to see if he wanted to get back together,” she states.

Fingerprint:

Alexandra Reese: Alexandra works as a veterinarian, specializing in caring for the local rodent population. While not at the clinic, Alexandra enjoys working out in her close fitting Lycra activewear. She supplements her fitness regimen with dietary calcium supplements. In addition, she is addicted to Starbucks and is never found without a coffee cup in her hand. Aside from physical activity, Alexandra also likes making homemade slime using her special recipe of glue and borax. “I used to be childhood friends with Harold, so I went to visit him last week,” she explains.
